Introduction: The People’s Lawyer

State attorneys general are more active and influential than ever.<sup>1</sup> While they continue to collaborate on multistate investigations of consumer protection and antitrust issues, they also view themselves as activists, operating along party lines as a bulwark against—or defenders of—incumbent administrations. During the Trump Administration and current Administration, state AGs have become increasingly active in mounting legal challenges to federal policies and legal positions, sometimes prompting AGs of the other party to weigh in on the opposite side. (See Figure 2 – Partisan multistate lawsuits filed against the federal government, 1981–2021)

This past fall there were 31 contested state AG elections, and one office previously held by a Democrat (Iowa) will now be held by a Republican, with the AG race in Arizona headed to an automatic recount; a legal challenge by Republican candidate Abraham Hamadeh, who trails by 510 votes as of publication, has been dismissed as “premature” by a state court. (See Table 1 – 2022 Attorney General Races; and Hamadeh profile, below.)

Reflecting the rising importance of the office, a record amount of money was spent on AG contests; some estimates place the total at $161 million, or roughly three times the highest previous total for a midterm election.<sup>2</sup> Republicans will occupy 27 and Democrats will hold 24 of the 51 AG offices starting in 2023 (assuming that the result in Arizona is not reversed by recount or legal challenge), which is the same as prior to the election, with the Arizona election result favoring the Democratic candidate still not certified. Regardless of party, those in office will affect businesses and consumers in crucial ways. This report provides an overview of America’s newly elected and appointed AGs, paying special attention to their histories as lawyers, legislators or policymakers in other roles, and to the pledges they made on the campaign trail.

The office of AG has roots in thirteenth century England, when kings appointed attorneys to represent their “regal interests” across their kingdom.<sup>3</sup> American state AGs are counsel to state executive branch agencies and sometimes to state legislatures and offices of the judiciary. Importantly, they also represent the public interest more broadly through their roles in areas such as consumer protection, antitrust, and law enforcement.<sup>4</sup> Once strictly viewed as the “government’s lawyers,” AGs are often now seen as independent officers “responsible for justice.”<sup>5</sup> Following this trend, AGs in 43 states<sup>6</sup> and the District of Columbia are now popularly elected.<sup>7</sup>

Either independently or in consultation with their state agency clients, state AGs have the authority to initiate lawsuits and influence litigation. State AGs affect policymaking by advising state lawmakers, defending state laws and regulations, and defending or challenging federal laws and policies—often by authoring “friend of the court” briefs (See Figure 3 – Multistate Amicus Briefs, 1980–2019).<sup>8</sup> They directly influence state law and policy by drafting “AG request” legislation, which is introduced on their offices’ behalf by state legislators. In many states, the AG’s powers arguably are exceeded only by the governor who is “responsible for the faithful execution of the laws.”<sup>9</sup>

America's Newest State Attorneys General

As noted above, in the 2022 midterm elections, 31 states had contested Attorneys General elections, producing 15 new state AGs so far. The Arizona AG race was decided by just 510 votes, triggering an automatic recount and a legal challenge (since dismissed as “premature” by a state court). A judge is expected to announce the recount results in a court hearing set for December 22.

In Missouri, AG Eric Schmitt was elected to the U.S. Senate; his successor recently was appointed by the Governor to fill out his term. In Pennsylvania, AG Shapiro was elected governor and his successor will be announced next month, bringing us to 16 new AGs as a result of the midterm elections.

The table below reviews these changes and is followed by an overview of each of the newly elected, reelected, and appointed AGs. The new AGs’ professional background and likely priorities in office are summarized.

<sup>1</sup> On November 23, 2022, Governor Parson announced that he is appointing his general counsel, Andrew Bailey, to become Missouri’s next Attorney General. Mr. Bailey will serve out the remaining two years of Attorney General Eric Schmitt’s term. General Schmitt was elected to the U.S. Senate in this past election cycle. Mr. Bailey has already indicated that he plans to run for a full four-year term in 2024.

<sup>2</sup> Interim Attorney General Drew Wrigley (R), a former U.S. Attorney and Lieutenant Governor, defeated attorney Timothy Lamb (D). Wrigley was nominated by Governor Burgum to serve out the remainder of the term of Attorney General Wayne Stenehjem (R), who unexpectedly passed away at the beginning of 2022.

<sup>3</sup> Attorney General T.J. Donovan (D) stepped down on June 20, 2022, to pursue an opportunity in the private sector. Outgoing Attorney General Susanne R. Young (R) was appointed to complete the remainder of General Donovan’s term and did not seek election to the office.

Arizona | Kris Mayes (D)

<https://krismayes.com/>

Former Arizona Corporation Commission Chair and journalist Kris Mayes received 510 more votes than former Maricopa County prosecutor Abraham Hamadeh (R). The closeness of the race triggered an automatic recount under Arizona law, which should be completed by December 25.<sup>10</sup>

During her tenure on the Corporation Commission, Ms. Mayes focused on ratepayer savings, renewable energy and clean air and water.<sup>11</sup> She previously served as press secretary for Janet Napolitano’s successful campaign for Arizona Governor and took a senior role in the Napolitano Administration in 2003, although Ms. Mayes was a former Republican (she became a Democrat in 2019).<sup>12</sup> Later that year, Governor Napolitano appointed Ms. Mayes to serve as Corporation Commissioner.<sup>13</sup> Since 2010, Ms. Mayes worked as a senior sustainability scientist at ASU’s School of Global Sustainability and teaches a course on energy law for the Sandra Day O’Connor College of Law.<sup>14</sup>

Consumer protections will likely be a focus of Mayes’ tenure. On the campaign trail, Mayes called for the resignation of outgoing AG Mark Brnovich for diverting funds dedicated for consumer protection for unrelated engagements.<sup>15</sup> Mayes has indicated that she will focus on clean water and air, elderly abuse and fraud as well as any state attempts to ban abortions, vowing not to prosecute medical professionals for their assistance in any related procedure.<sup>16</sup> With respect to border protection and human trafficking, Mayes has indicated that the state will “need to get Airbnb and Vrbo (vacation rental sites) to come to the table.”<sup>17</sup>

- Public/Political Corruption: Mayes pledges to “investigate and prosecute public and political corruption” through the Attorney General’s office of Fraud & Special Investigations Section.<sup>28</sup>

Arizona | Abraham Hamadeh (R)

<https://www.abeforag.com/>

Former Maricopa County prosecutor Abraham Hamadeh (R) trails former Arizona Corporation Commission Chair Kris Mayes by 510 votes. The race is now headed to a recount, which should be completed by December 25.<sup>29</sup>

Mr. Hamadeh is a former prosecutor of the Maricopa County Attorney's Office. In this role, he prosecuted felonies in the trial division. Mr. Hamadeh also previously served as an intelligence officer in the U.S. Army Reserve. Mr. Hamadeh completed a 14-month deployment to Saudi Arabia last year.

Mr. Hamadeh, who was endorsed by former President Donald Trump, is an outspoken critic of the Biden administration. His campaign focused on promises of increasing border security, cracking down on fentanyl smuggling, and increasing support for law enforcement.<sup>30</sup>

Following the election results, Mr. Hamadeh filed a lawsuit contesting the election. On November 29, 2022, an Arizona state judge dismissed the election lawsuit as "premature."<sup>31</sup>

BACKGROUND<sup>32</sup>

- Captain, Intelligence, United States Army Reserve, 2016–Present
- Prosecutor, Maricopa County Attorney's Office, 2017–2021
- Arizona State University, B.S., University of Arizona, J.D., 2016

PRIORITIES<sup>33</sup>

- Border Security: Mr. Hamadeh cites the "wide open border" as one of his primary motivations for running for attorney general.<sup>34</sup> As attorney general, he has promised to be "a lot more aggressive" in enforcing border security. For example, he plans to declare that migration across the border is an "invasion" so the state could use its war powers.<sup>35</sup>
- Fentanyl Crisis: Mr. Hamadeh promises to target drug cartels that are bringing fentanyl across the border and has called fentanyl the "major issue...plaguing our suburbs."<sup>36</sup>
- Supporting Law Enforcement: Mr. Hamadeh says he would ask the legislature to give the attorney general's office the authority to take over any felony case brought in any county in the state.<sup>37</sup>

Arkansas | Tim Griffin (R)

<https://timgriffinforag.com/>

Lieutenant Governor Tim Griffin (R), who is also a former U.S. House Member and U.S. Attorney, was elected with a 68% to 32% majority, defeating attorney and Little Rock Parks and Recreation Commission member Jesse Gibson (D).<sup>38</sup> Outgoing two-term AG Leslie Rutledge (R) was term limited and was elected Lieutenant Governor this election cycle.

During the Bush Administration, Mr. Griffin also served as U.S. Attorney for the Eastern District of Arkansas and as Special Assistant to the President and Deputy Director of Political Affairs. In a solidly red state, Griffin will continue a conservative approach to crime, social issues, and federal policies from the Biden/Harris Administration.<sup>45</sup> Griffin has indicated that he is already working on legislation with state lawmakers for the upcoming legislative session, which may include more restrictions on parole eligibility for violent offenses.<sup>46</sup> He also opposed an unsuccessful ballot initiative to legalize recreational marijuana, citing it would place the state in a competitive disadvantage to attract jobs from the technology and auto industries.<sup>47</sup> Griffin will likely join other Attorneys General from red states to oppose initiatives from President Biden.<sup>48</sup>
